College Head Lauds Program

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., Dec. 14, 1938.

William Randolph Hearst,
Care of the New York Journal and American.

As president of Seton Hall College, the first and only American college to prescribe a compulsory course in Americanism in an effort to familiarize our coming generation with the finest, fairest and most perfect form of government in the world's history, may I congratulate you on your endeavor to rouse public consciousness of that method of government on the 147th anniversary of the ratification of the Bill of Rights through your Rededication Day program.

The Bill of Rights and the Constitution are a bulwark against Communism and totalitarianism and all other anti-American and anti-religious isms. There is room for none of these in the United States today or in the future.

As part of your program attention of all students at Seton Hall College will be called to the anniversary today and the Bill of Rights will be read and discussed in all classes.

When I see the denial and destruction of rights, religious, political and personal in Europe today, I thank God I am an American in America.

The very REV. JAMES F. KELLEY, PH. D.,
President of Seton Hall College.

Reardon Tells Of Gale Work

State Commissioner of Education James G. Reardon, today told Attorney General Paul A. Dever that he "felt relieved of any further responsibility" for hurricane repair work at state colleges after he had appointed an architect that Governor Hurley recommended.

Commissioner Reardon was one of the early witnesses as the Dever inquiry resumed on contracts awarded for hurricane damage at the state college at Worcester. Contracts totalling $82,680 were signed for damage to property at this college.

One dormitory, repaired under the contract, was closed for the past seven years and many of the windows were broken before the hurricane, John J. Flynn, a janitor at the college, testified in response to questions by Dever.

Flynn further testified he did not notice any marked difference in the condition of the parking space at the new State Teachers College in May street, after the hurricane.

One of the contracts called for replacement of this small under-covered space with nearly an acre of "type I mix" pavement.

Asked if he noticed leaks in a corner of the library, Flynn replied:

"That corner has always leaked. I have had occasion to sweep up plaster that fell on the floor because of the leaks."

Commissioner Reardon testified he made a cursory inspection of the property with Edward T. P. Graham, the architect who awarded the contracts for the department.

"We went through the old building," Reardon testified, "and I told Graham the building should be put in condition to protect it from elements and weather."

N. E. Patriots Rally for Liberty

Reviewing the blessings of religious and civic freedom, New England patriots today rededicated themselves to the instrument that makes those blessings possible—the Bill of Rights of the Constitution, ratified just 147 years ago.

Persons of all creeds and faiths, all walks of life, joined in a mighty tribute to "Rededication Day" and a program suggested by William Randolph Hearst for renewal of faith and support in America.

Climax of the observance was scheduled tonight at 8:15 in Faneuil Hall, "The Cradle of American Liberty," where state and civic dignitaries gather for rededication to the priceless heritage in the Bill of Rights—freedom of worship, free press, free speech and right to assembly.

Nationally, hundreds of similar meetings will be held in principal cities of the nation, but here in Boston, birthplace of Americanism, the celebration was of far-reaching importance.

Dr. James G. Reardon, State Commissioner of Education, is general chairman of the Faneuil Hall meeting. Speakers include:

Mayor Tobin, Lieut.-Gov. Kelly, Kenneth I. Taylor, secretary Massachusetts State Federation of Labor; Lieut. Col. John Millikin, assistant chief of staff, U. S. army, First Corps Area; Harry Holmes, state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; Mrs. Pauline Revere Auerhamer, direct descendant of the patriot and president of the Sons and Daughters of American Liberty; Commissioner Herbert A. Dallas of the Boy Scouts of America; Samuel Kalesky, president of the Ameri-

Dad Gambles On Girl's Life

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (AP)—A decision that death was better than the life of a cripple was reached today by William Lewis in determining the fate of his cancer-stricken daughter, Dorothy, 8.

Inundated by letters from all over the country, citing pro and con arguments by those who had read of the little Brooklyn cripple's plight, the distraught father made his choice: "She will live or die on both legs."

Surgeons have told him the daughter, afflicted with sarcoma or cancer of the thigh bone, must die within eight or ten months unless her leg is amputated.

On the other hand, an operation would give her one chance in 10 of living—healthy, but a cripple.

"I have made up my mind," Lewis said. "I have gone through torture, but in the end I knew I could not consign the child to a cripple's life."

"My reasons are not emotional or sentimental. They are based on the medical profession's own word that an amputation could not be proved successful until five years have passed."

Nurses Cry As Ma Gives Skin to Girl

BROCKTON, Dec. 15—Lorraine Stankus, 3, today had a Christmas present no amount of money could buy—a present that's going to make her well like other girls.

The brave child, suffering from burns since last September, lay quietly on a cot at Brockton Hospital while her equally courageous mother, 35-year-old Mrs. Vera Stankus, gave up 18 pieces of her own skin that her child might recover.

Doctors and nurses, injured to suffering wept as the mother and daughter conversed calmly during the operation. No ether was used because of the damaging effects of anesthetics on the skin during such surgery.

"Are they hurting you, Mommy?" the youngster asked. "Not hurting a bit," was the answer of the mother, who tried to smile her reassurance.

Doctors took pieces of skin from the mother's thigh and transferred them to the burned stomach and legs of the daughter. They then pronounced the operation successful, with prediction that Lorraine will be fully recovered within two months.

The child was burned while playing with other children in the kitchen of the Stankus home.

Jews Pay Nazis Part of Big Fine

BERLIN, Dec. 15—The treasury of the German Reich was swelled today by $100,000,000 from the pockets of German Jews with individual fortunes of more than 5000 marks, who thus completed payment of the first of four levies of the $400,000,000 fine imposed on the German Jewish community.

The fine was decreed in punishment for the assassination of Ernst Vom Rath, German embassy secretary in Paris, by a German-born Polish Jew.

Fully aware that swift retribution would be meted out for failure to pay their shares within the

MRS. EMMA O'HALLORAN
Charges Attack by Winthrop Officer

Blonde Sobs 'Police Attack'

She tried to crawl away from her attacker on her hands and knees, she said.

Blood streamed from her face—her hands—her knees.

"But he said he'd put a bullet in my head if I didn't stop screaming."

Sobbing at moments near collapse, young Mrs. Emma O'Halloran of Winthrop retold, in all its details, this story of her experience in a Suffolk courtroom today.

She was under cross-examination by Attorney John H. Drew, counsel for Patrolman Milton J. Whalen of Winthrop—the man she accuses.

She was dressed all in black—a small, pretty woman girlish to be the mother of a five-year-old daughter.

She testified Patrolman Whalen met her at the home of mutual friends to drive her, and reserve Officer John J. Kelley of Winthrop police, and his wife, to their homes.

"He let the Kelleys out," she told the court, sobbing, "then he started for my home. At the corner of the boulevard an Olindehill road I asked him to stop."

"He just kept going down the boulevard at 40 miles an hour, straight to Fort Heath. He parked the car on the reservation and started to make advances."

TELLS OF STRUGGLE
"We had a struggle and I escaped. I ran from the car screaming as loud as I could, but he caught me and pulled me back. Then we started away from the reservation. He was going fast again. Just past the railroad station he slowed the car up, opened the door and pushed me out. I fell into the street."

Educator Leaves Harvard $25,000

A gift of $25,000 to Harvard College was announced today with the statement that John M. Prather, 74-year-old retired St. Louis school teacher and Harvard graduate died yesterday of pneumonia in Alexandria, Egypt.

The American consul telegraphed notice of Prather's death. He took A. B. and A. M. degrees at Harvard in 1896. His will leaves a total of $100,000 in gifts to colleges, the income from which is to be used in lectures, scholarships and fellowships in history, sociology and ethical principles.

Here Mrs. O'Halloran paused to control her sobs.

"I began to go along the street on my hands and knees," she continued. "I couldn't walk. He stopped the car and got out and dragged me back. My face and my hands and knees were bleeding. He said he'd put a bullet in my head if I didn't stop screaming, and I saw a gun."

Following Mrs. O'Halloran on the stand was Thomas A. Jones of Crystal road, Winthrop, who said he had known the defendant for 15 years.

"I was near the station that

Timilty Clamps Lid on Rackets

Police Commissioner Timilty is gingerly lifting the lid off an unsavory mess in his department and a wholesale shakeup, with demotions, is impending—to be made probably January 1.

Rackets were permitted a wide-open run during Commissioner Timilty's four weeks' vacation in California, and the police head, back on the job a week, has discovered it.

At least six captains have been on the carpet before the commissioner to explain—if they can—"why," the Boston Evening American learned today.

More captains and other officials who have enjoyed snug berths at headquarters are to be summoned before Timilty.

Horse parlors, number pool setups and vice establishments ran high and wide if not handsome during the commissioner's absence, according to evidence secretly placed before him.

This evidence substantiates charges of collusion in official headquarters.

The detective bureau may be reorganized and the special service squad disbanded as a result of the disclosures.

Lieutenants, sergeants and special officers will join their captains in one of the most drastic shakeups in department history.

Back on the job and reported "mad enough to eat nails," the commissioner took personal charge of the racket lid-slaming, the Boston Evening American learned.

It was revealed that the commissioner was incredulous when he heard the first stories of al-

Plant Heir Weds His No. 3 Today

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (INS)—Phil Plant, one-time Broadway playboy, and Marjorie King, Broadway beauty, will be married later today in a spacious Fifth avenue drawing room, decorated with palms and out-of-season Easter lilies.

Col. William Hayward will give the bride away at the ceremony in the home of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. William Hayward, but there will be no other attendants for the playboy whose "heart wounds" have cost him well over a million dollars.

His bride will wear a drab-gray dress and Plant will step out of the boots and breeches he wears on his Oswegatchie, Conn., poultry farm and don a frock coat and striped trousers for the wedding.

The couple will spend their honeymoon on a Safari in British East Africa where Plant hopes to bag some wart hogs, ostriches and vultures for the American Museum of Natural History.

After Africa, Plant and his bride will come home "to roost" at the chicken farm where he retired when his love for wife No. 2, Edna Dunham Plant, cooled.

Double Trouble Puts Twins In Hospital

Double trouble—that's what Barbara and Joan Rabbitt, two-year-old twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Peter B. Rabbitt, Taylor terrace, Mattapan, were sharing at Boston City Hospital today.

Barbara and Joan were stricken ill almost simultaneously at their home, Barbara with pneumonia and Joan with acute bronchitis.

As hospital authorities reported them "resting comfortably," a newspaper photographer appeared to take their pictures. The blonde and blue-eyed twins stared solemnly at him.

The two were the first twins of the New Year born in Boston in 1933. They arrived January 4 of that year.

There are three other children and father and mother are having a hard time trying to figure out just what Santa Claus should do.

Cambridge Youth Routes Candle-Toting Burglar

An "old-fashioned" burglar, carrying a lighted candle instead of a flashlight, was driven from a Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge, today, when a 15-year-old youth jumped out of bed and confronted him.

The youth, James E. MacDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel MacDonald, told police the prowler was about 30 years old, wearing a soft gray hat and a black overcoat.

At the time young MacDonald surprised him the burglar was on the second floor of the house. He had forced an outer door and had tampered with the lock of an inner door before discovering that it was unfastened.

Boy Rescues Sister in Fire

WHITINSVILLE, Dec. 15 (AP)—

An 11-year-old girl was carried out a window by her brother early today as fire of undetermined origin badly damaged a two-family house, forcing the occupants to flee in a temperature of 15 degrees above zero.

Raymond Peloquin, 17-year-old son of the owner, rescued his sister, Doris, through the window when a stairway was cut off by flames.

Wet Weather Ahead

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (INS)—Weather forecast for 1939 and 1940: "relatively wet."

Thus, in a curt long-range prediction, the U. S. Weather Bureau today notified the nation that the current drought cycle will be "temporarily" halted in the years just ahead.

However, the "weather man" pointed out that if the weather pattern of the past century continues, the country will enter subsequent successions of dry and wet cycles.

'Take the Stand, Dr. Magrath'

And 'The Chair' Awaited

Deaths by violence finally make a pattern for those who probe their causes . . . So many murders, so many suicides, so many accidents . . . and finally they all seem alike.

Twenty thousand times Dr. George Burgess Magrath, medical examiner in Boston's northern district for twenty-eight years, faced the riddle of death which was unexplained, and twenty thousand times he sought the cause. Six thousand times he performed autopsies.

Six thousand bodies on six thousand slabs . . .

By GEORGE W. CLARKE

They say he wore the same hat for fifteen years . . .

It was an articulate hat, one that fairly cried out the kind of a man he was. It was of cloth, and battered. Time in passing had given it an ineluctable personality.

It perched on his head, slightly forward, the brim curled all around to give a small measure of freedom to his billowing pink hair.

The austerity of his Bohemianism would not allow a charge of style in neck-ties. All through the years, as far back as anyone can remember, he wore the same kind—wide, flowing, black, tied in a Windsor bow.

And his gray eyes were querulous through the steel-rims of his glasses.

His black bag held the instruments of his trade—knives, saws, antiseptics, rubber gloves, etc., and, always, at least four, curved stem briar pipes. Each was kept charged with tobacco always, and there was a tobacco pouch for emergencies.

He owned two cars, not one—an open tonneau Cadillac, vintage of 1907, equipped, as before stated, with five siren and tricky lights, and a Ford roadster, class of '09.

His arrival at the scene of a homicide was monumental in dignity.

ALWAYS IN COMMAND

Trained by the late Miss Rebecca Sullivan, his spinster secretary, notebook poised for action, he immediately assumed command. His first words were always—

"Has anybody touched the body?" . . . and pity anyone who had!

Tape in hand he would methodically measure everything in sight, establishing first of all the exact position of the body in relation to surrounding objects.

In the later days photographers helped in this proceeding. Then, after every single object had been observed and noted—in his own notebook and by way of a running fire of commands—carefully transcribed by Miss Sullivan—he would direct removal of the body to the mortuary.

Post mortem examinations are all the same. All are designed to bring forth information so, when that day comes when a prosecutor or defender, says "Take the stand, please," answers can be had for three basic questions.

Where? When? How?

LAST MOST IMPORTANT
And of these the most important is the last, for that one is designed to establish "criminal agency," to complete the corpus delicti upon which all homicide prosecutions are based. And so the cases dovetail each into the other.

The tragedy of the Stewart girl was one of the most touching in Doctor Magrath's whole catalogue of crime.

POSITION IMPORTANT

She was found dead the night of March 30th, 1927, just off the Concord road.

Silken-clad knees were high under her chin—and this was so imbedded, viz: 1, that a person is dead; 2, that death was caused through the criminal agency of another person.

And so that pattern referred to in today's introduction works itself out in whirling particles of information in what resembles nothing so much as a kaleidoscope of experience.

Verna Russell was found dead by a lonely roadside. Marguerita Isabelle Stewart was found dead by a lonely roadside.

It was important in the famous Costello case that it be determined in what position Fire Captain William J. Costello was when he died from cyanide poisoning.

It was important in the prosecution of Frederick Hinman Knowlton, Framingham youth, for the murder of the Stewart girl to determine in what position she was when she died.

Important in Doctor Magrath's testimony later—the girl was found to have been bludgeoned to death, with two horrible holes in her head.

The first autopsy, performed by Medical Examiner Henry J. Walcott, of Middlesex County, established the cause of death, her skull was crushed, that she would have become a mother within a few minutes, and that she already had had a child.

She was a supervisor at the Beverly School for the Deaf, and at the school was unearthed the information which led to Knowlton's arrest.

PHONE NUMBER CLUE

It was a telephone number in Framingham, the telephone number of Frederick Hinman Knowlton, Jr., 36, married, father of two children, and the owner of a battery service station.

Detectives started to check his activities for the 48 hours prior to the discovery of the girl's body.

"Oh, he was at work bright and early this morning," a witness told them. "I remember because he was out in front of his shop when I arrived. He was washing his car."

Washing his car! The position in which the girl was found. The car was a robin-egg blue Chrysler roadster, and it had a rumble seat compartment! . . . Had she been stuffed in that compartment?

FREDERICK H. KNOWLTON

Knowlton was invited to visit District Attorney Bushnell, and ten and a half hours later, after as grueling a third degree as ever could be handed a man, the prosecutor met the press.

"After attempting denials and telling several lying stories, Knowlton has admitted having carried on an illicit love affair with the Stewart girl."

"He has admitted having met her at Framingham on the night of Thursday, March 29. He has admitted discussing with her her approaching motherhood. He still says he drove her home to Beverly that Thursday night, but we will prove that he didn't."

"We have evidence that he washed his automobile on the morning of Saturday, March 31. The rumble seat of his automobile has been newly painted. A chemical was used to clean it. We have seized his rubbers. They are stained."

SECOND AUTOPSY

That night Doctor Magrath, as in the Hathaway case, performed a second autopsy on the dead girl's body, this time at midnight in the little receiving chapel of the Sleepy Hollow Cemetery.

Mrs. Gladys Bragg Knowlton fought valiantly for her husband's life, seconded by his father, a selectman of the town, and the chairman of its Republican committee.

If there was blood in the car, she testified, it was her blood, blood from a hemorrhage. She could, and bravely tried to, account for every moment of his time during the disputed period.

All she succeeded in doing was convincing the jury that Knowlton had kept the body of the dead girl in the rumble seat of the car while he ate with his wife and children, while he went about his daily affairs until at night he had a chance to dispose of it.

Backed up by Dr. William A. Hinton, of the Harvard Medical School, a blood expert, Doctor

MARGUERITA I. STEWART

DR. MAGRATH'S investigation of the slaying of Marguerita Stewart, who was found dead in Concord March 30, 1927, led to the arrest and conviction of Frederick H. Knowlton, who paid with his life in electric chair for her slaying.

Magrath coldly, deliberately, without passion or prejudice, started Knowlton's path towards the electric chair.

OTHER CLUES

Despite the point and chemicals there was blood in the rumble seat. It could not have been Mrs. Knowlton's blood, it was of a different type. There was blood on Knowlton's rubbers.

Rigor mortis had set in while the girl was cramped into the position in which she was found, indicating that she had been stuffed into a small, narrow compartment.

Lividity of the body, the coloration after death, indicated that she had been laying after death on her left side for an extended period. This was determined by marks left by the blood coagulation, settling to that side through gravity.

Death was due to the jagged head wounds . . . She may have lived for several minutes after they were inflicted.

"You can have these, buddy," said Knowlton, carelessly tossing a pack of cards to his keeper in the Charlestown Prison death cell. "I won't be needing them anymore . . . Come on, let's go."

So, holding forth his innocence to the end, he walked his last mile, and such is the irony of the pattern in Doctor Magrath's kaleidoscope of tragedy, it was his duty, after it was all over, to perform another autopsy . . . This time on the body of Frederick Hinman Knowlton, Jr., whom his testimony had helped send to the chair . . .

Of all his duties, attending executions was that one he hated most.

The story of Doctor Magrath's part in the Sacco-Vanzetti case will be told in tomorrow's installment of "Take the Stand, Doctor Magrath."

Xmas Gifts to Policemen O. K. Here, Taboo in N. Y.

Boston policemen hid wide Irish grins behind discreet hands today—and were ready with their "Merry Christmases."

The grins were directed at the New York City police force but the "Merry Christmases" also very discreetly—were aimed at acquaintances among the citizenry. In addition, they held an unusually warm place in their hearts for Police Commissioner Timilty—God bless him—and offered up scallions for Police Commissioner Valentine of New York.

Which is a round about way of saying that Valentine has turned thumbs down on Christmas presents for his boys and Timilty had blandly O. K'd any little gift a grateful citizen might wish to grant the Hub's stalwart bobbies. For a few tense hours, when word of Valentine's action reached Boston, local officers feared similar action might deprive them of their share in the season's greetings—outside their families, of course.

But "Papa" Timilty stuck to his boys.

"I don't see anything wrong with officers receiving gifts from citizens who want to remember them on Christmas," said Timilty. "This, of course, with the understanding that there be absolutely no solicitation on the part of the officer."

He held no brief with Valentine's stringent order that no more can officers accept envelopes slipped from expensive limousines, or pretty packages plopped in one hand while the other directs traffic.

Girl Cripple, 6, Meets Santa for First Time

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 15 (AP) — A six-year-old girl who never heard of Santa Claus found new wonders today in her first Christmas season away from the farmhouse bedroom in which she spent five years.

Crippled by rickets and weighing only about 31 pounds, Alice Harris was found 10 months ago in the Southwestern Pennsylvania home of her grandfather, David Harris. Humane authorities charged she was confined as punishment for Martha Harris, her unwed mother.

Since then she has grown physically, but still can't walk or talk. She weighs 42 pounds and her full set of teeth are perfect. Sociologist Kingsley Davis, of Pennsylvania State College, reported Alice played and acted like a 13-month-old baby and seemed to be "without much motivation for learning anything."

FIRST XMAS PARTY

At her first Christmas party yesterday Alice laughed huskily, waving her hands and dangling her slim legs from a chair as she played with members of her Sunday school class. Her eyes sparkled.

Mrs. Jennie Rowan, who recently assumed care of the child, said she "never talked to Alice about Santa Claus. We'll have a Christmas tree for her, but we haven't decided on gifts."

"She walks a little if you lead her; and she can stand alone a few seconds," said Mrs. Rowan, 66-year-old widow who has reared five children of her own.

"Alice is no trouble. She doesn't cry except when she has been on her feet too long. She sits down and scoots around the house, taking care of herself."

"Alice says no words but makes a sound that seems like 'boy, boy, boy.'"

"The child is wild about a little toy dog, but I don't think she is inclined to like toys. She prefers to get her arms and legs in motion."

"Alice is fond of children. She wants them around to play with her. She takes up with strangers if they show interest in her. Otherwise she appears timid."

4 Hurt in Motor Crash in Malden

Four persons were injured in the collision of two sedans at Broadway and Eastern avenue, Malden, early today.

Missing Drug Millions Sought in Stock Deals

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (INS) — With several lines of inquiry already opened into financial affairs of McKesson & Robbins, $86,000,000 drug firm, the New York Stock Exchange today sought information on operation of a brokerage account in the name of the wife of the concern's president.

The president, F. Donald Coster, and George Dietrich, assistant treasurer, are free under $5000 bail on charges of violating federal laws concerning the filing of financial statements.

It is alleged that $18,000,000 of the firm's listed assets cannot be located.

Harold Spear, specialist in McKesson & Robbins stock, was called today before Chairman Robert L.

Stott, of the Stock Exchange's committee on floor procedure, concerning the accounts of Mrs. Carol E. Coster and John J. Jenkins.

Spear already has testified that his limited discretion in these accounts was controlled by Coster. CALL MORE WITNESSES

Under the guidance of Assistant U. S. Attorneys Lester Dunigan and Irving Kaufman, the federal Grand Jury expected to question three new witnesses. Twelve more are under subpoena to appear before that body tomorrow.

Assistant-General Ambrose V. McCall announced that he has "substantial reason to believe that Coster is a man of different identity known to this office."

Anti-3d-Term League Forms

Papers for incorporation of the Anti-Third Term League, an organization which will oppose any third-term aspirations President Roosevelt may have, were on file with Secretary of State Fred Eric Cook today.

The Boston League is a branch of a nationwide movement according to Attorney Joel I. Miller, former state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and counsel for the new organization.

Boston headquarters are at 44 Bromfield street. Miller denied the league was aimed at any particular candidate.

WILL FLOAT NOTE ISSUE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (INS)—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has announced it will shortly float a $50,000,000 issue of five-year notes on behalf of the Federal National Mortgage Company, a subsidiary. The notes will bear 3.5 per cent interest.

May Call 3d Panel In Ct. Fraud Case

WATERBURY, Ct., Dec. 15 (AP)—Superior Court officials may soon have to draw a third panel of gentlemen in the municipal million-dollar fraud case, if the selection of jurors to try Lieutenant-Governor Frank Hayes and 21 other defendants lags as it has during the past week. From two panels totaling 272 veniremen drawn thus far, only seven jurors have been chosen, and only 66 prospective jurors were left for examination.

HUNT MISSING STUDENT

Search began throughout New England today for Melchior T. Williams, 15, a student at Mt. Hermon school, Northfield, after his father, William J. Williams of Lewis street, Hartford, Ct., reported to state police his son failed to reach home for the Christmas holidays.

Republics Push
Compromise
On U. S. Plan

By THOMAS A. LOAYZA
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 15.—A declaration of American "solidarity and conscience" began to take shape today at the Eighth Pan-American Conference as a compromise between the Argentine and United States plans for some sort of agreement on inter-American mutual cooperation against possible outside aggression.

The delegations worked intensively on the text of the agreement which is expected to meet Argentine objections to the American project for a "gentlemen's agreement" for mutual defense.

Several delegations, including that of the United States, had not yet expressed their acceptance today of the new type of declaration which, it is expected, will reflect the view of Argentine Foreign Minister Jose Maria Cantillo that no danger of foreign aggression of a sort requiring a continental mutual defense pact exists at this time.

It was understood today that the new declaration will be conceived more or less in the following terms:

"The American republics reaffirm their readiness to co-operate for the reestablishment of the principles on which American solidarity and conscience are based.

"In the event the peace of the American republics is threatened by a non-American source, the American republics proclaim their decision to put the principle of solidarity into operation by means of consultation and to co-ordinate their activities for the maintenance of the territory and institutions which are threatened."

Forgrave Aide Tells of Checks

Surrounded by a mountain of ledgers, customers' lists and stock reference cards, Robert H. Jackson, cashier of the defunct Brown, Anthony Company, again took the stand in Suffolk Superior Court today. It was his third day of testimony.

William M. Forgrave, former broker and prohibition crusader, and H. Henry Anthony, partners of the firm, are defendants in a jury waived session before Judge Edward T. Broadhurst on charges of conspiracy and larceny in 26 indictments.

Under cross-examination by Attorney David Stoneman, counsel for Anthony, Jackson told of seeing Anthony sign a check for $20,000 on a margin account for Mrs. Marguerite A. R. Holmes of Reading, and of Forgrave's giving it to Mrs. Holmes.

Then Jackson testified, in answer to questions by Judge Broadhurst, that Anthony drew salary checks of $2130 in May and June, 1937, and that from January 1 to June 29, 1937, when the firm closed, Anthony drew a total of $4323.10 salary.

Jackson's earlier testimony was enlivened when Mile. Marie Masure of Newbury street, Back Bay, attractive French tuteursse, testified that Forgrave "got her heart and money."

She was able to laugh as she told of her alleged loss of $9600 while describing 10 promissory notes for $1000 each given her, allegedly, by Forgrave in return for one $10,000 promissory note.

This was at the very time the firm was going into bankruptcy, it was testified.

Hunts a Job, Finds Death

"I can't get work . . . I'm just a tough luck guy . . ."

Since Saturday, roomers in a Maiden lodging house heard those phrases repeated by Wesley A. Smith, 32, of West street, Wilmington.

Today, Mrs. Joseph Muse, one of the roomers, traced an odor of gas to the room that Smith hired Saturday. Smith was dead on the floor. Gas was still flowing through a tube in his mouth.

Roomers told police that Smith had reported his wife in a Greater Boston hospital as the result of a major operation but a check at the hospitals they named failed to reveal any Mrs. Smith as a patient.

HAVERFORD, Pa., Dec. 15 (AP)

Curtis B. Dall, divorced husband of President Roosevelt's daughter, Anna, will be married to Miss Katharine Miller Leas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stewart Leas.

Announcing wedding plans, Dall said in a statement he regretted "Sissy and Buzz," children by his former wife, "could not be present at the ceremony owing to their being in school in faraway Seattle."

Dall's tow-headed son and daughter live with their mother, now the wife of John Boettiger, Seattle newspaper publisher.

CIO Architects Honor Roosevelt

5 Saved by Boy As Homes Burn

A nine-year-old boy, his three-year-old brother, two married couples and the children's pets escaped possible death in a double house in Paine street, Roslindale, today because the nine-year-old little boy scented smoke.

The boy, Ernest Cossette, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jules Cossette, was awakened by the crackle of flames and the dense smoke.

Taking his younger brother by the hand, he called his mother and father and led the way to the street.

On the way, Cossette senior picked up Ernest's dog and squirrel, both sleeping on the floor below.

Then the other family in the house, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon War-man, were awakened and left their home.

Firemen estimated the damage at $3000.

'Col. Gimp' Tells His Own Story In Etting Case

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15 (AP)—Martin (the Gimp) Snyder, gambling his freedom against prison terms which may total 115 years, gets a chance today to tell his version of the shooting of Myrl Alderman, husky young pianist who replaced him as the husband of Torch Singer Ruth Etting.

Snyder, a dapper and familiar figure along the rialtos of New York and Chicago, sat solemn and emotionless in court while the songstress, object of his "deathless love" but now the bride of the man he is charged with trying to murder, accused him of wounding Alderman as the musician sat on a piano bench in his Hollywood Hills home last Oct. 15.

His mood deepened and he turned his head as his own daughter, Edith Snyder, 21, pictured him as a cursing intruder who threatened to kill not only Alderman, but Miss Etting and herself. The prosecutor's case was completed shortly after Alderman, 30, and Miss Etting, seven years his senior, eloped by plane yesterday to Las Vegas, Nevada, where they were married.

Cross-examination of prosecution witnesses pointed toward a plea of self-defense for Snyder by his attorney, astute Jerry Giesler. But Miss Etting, Miss Snyder and Alderman himself, have denied that the musician was armed, although the blues singer admitted she kept a revolver in the bedroom of Alderman's home because of threats which Snyder telephoned to her from New York.

Minor witnesses closed the state's attempt to convict "The Gimp" of six felonies, two of kidnapping three of attempted murder and one of possessing a gun with the numbers filed off.

Giant Goes Berserk, 1 Killed, 1 Dying

Toledo, Mich., Dec. 15 (INS)—One inmate was killed, another was probably fatally beaten, and a guard at the state hospital for the criminally insane was seriously injured, when a giant Negro went berserk.

The Negro, Robert McNeary, 37, a magnificent specimen weighing more than 200 pounds and six feet tall, tore a leg from a heavy chair and beat Stanley Krasowski, 32, to death. He then attacked Len Cantor, 36. Physicians doubted Cantor would survive.

Mystery Donor Gives Million to Boston Library

A $1,000,000 gift to the Boston Public Library, made by a mystery donor, was announced today by Mayor Talbot. The gift, which is the largest in the history of the city, will be used for the purchase of books and the improvement of the library's buildings. The donor, who is a prominent business man, has asked that his name be kept secret. The gift is a testament to the donor's love of knowledge and his desire to leave a lasting legacy to the city of Boston.

Roper Decides To Quit Cabinet

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (AP).—Roper, secretary of the Interior, has decided to resign from his position in the cabinet. The resignation was announced today by the president. Roper has served in the cabinet for several years and has been a loyal and efficient member. His resignation is expected to be accepted by the president.

Ickes Declines To Run in Chicago

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP).—Secretary of Interior Harold I. Ickes, said today he definitely would not be a candidate for mayor of Chicago in 1937. Ickes has been a prominent figure in the city of Chicago and has been a member of the city's board of aldermen. He has declined the offer to run for mayor because he is already committed to his duties as secretary of the interior.

British Again Warn Hitler

LONDON, Dec. 15 (INS)—An implied warning that Great Britain's enormous financial strength would outweigh German military power in a long conflict was issued today by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

The prime minister's address was made in a speech before a House of Commons luncheon as Anglo-German relations deteriorated under the impact of the Nazi boycott of Chamberlain's address before the Foreign Press Association.

"We may take it," Chamberlain declared, "that when German statesmen—I won't say the German people—reflect on the possible consequences of a conflict—if ever a conflict should arise between the two countries, they will think not only of our armaments but of our great financial resources which, in a war of long duration, might well prove to be the deciding factor.

"It is this sense which is always with us, and which is sure to be the greatest influence in preserving the peace of the world."

Chamberlain's reminder of Britain's huge financial resources was made at the House of Commons luncheon at which Chamberlain sought to bring the new treaty in Anglo-German relations.

Dr. Schacht, who arrived in London on an "unofficial" visit connected with finding monetary means for German Jewish emigration, said he was "glad to hear of the British government's attitude toward the totalitarian powers."

United Poland Plea From Pope

WARSAW, Dec. 15 (AP)—A plea from Pope Pius for "mutual understanding" among Poles and Ukrainians seeking Ukrainian autonomy in southeastern Poland was made today by Archbishop Filippo Cortesi, Papal nuncio to Poland.

Catholic circles viewed Mgr. Cortesi's tour of East Galicia as a move by the Holy See aimed at countering the current anti-Polish propaganda conducted by Ukrainians.

Ukrainians have been agitating for self-government for 16 years and on December 9 submitted to Parliament a demand for territorial autonomy including regions of Galicia, totaling nearly 50,000 square miles and having a population of 8,000,000, territorially about one-third of Poland.

NEW FRANCO DRIVE

HENDAYE, France (the Spanish Frontier), Dec. 15 (AP)—Spanish insurgent forces launched simultaneous attacks today against government lines in northern and western Spain accompanied by heavy artillery bombardments.

ENGAGED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15 (AP)—The engagement of the daughter of the late President Woodrow Wilson to the son of the late President Calvin Coolidge was announced today by the White House.

N. Y. Strike Ties Up N. E. Food

By JOHN W. ENGLISH

Hundreds of tons of merchandise including fresh fish, have been tied up in Boston, Worcester, Springfield and other New England cities because of the strike of platform handlers in New York City, according to Nicholas P. Morrissey, president of the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor and former president of Boston Teamsters' Local No. 25.

A third element, which is the subject of the present paper, is the fact that the present configuration of the conformational distribution of the polymer is determined by the thermal environment. The data of the present investigation (see Table I and Fig. 1) show that at 100°C. and 140°C. the conformational distribution is dominated by the trans and gauche conformations, while at 160°C. and 180°C. the trans and gauche conformations are in equilibrium with the trans and gauche conformations.

Arrest Broker In Huge Theft

Joseph M. Lydon, 42, of Freeman place, Needham, was arrested at police headquarters today on formal charges of larceny of $80,000.

Through a stock exchange police said some of proceeds were withdrawn from the state and transferred to New York to be cashed.

Lydon, manager of the broker, was taken to the state house of correction today. He was charged with the theft of $80,000 from the victims of the 12 per cent commission from a transaction in a company corporation it was alleged.

He was arrested by Captain John A. Dwyer, State Detective Francis H. and Sergeant Daniel Murphy, all of whom are attached to the office of Attorney General Paul A. Davis.

Chief Dwyer said that 12 companies were filed at Dwyer's office shortly after the fourth 12 per cent dividend paid to investors.

According to Dwyer, Lydon admitted he put in the scheme by which high pressure stockmen were sent to agents known to have good connections and to have them to dispose of them and place the receipts in the 12 per cent column.

Lydon was in fact, said Dwyer, with William H. Hays and Charles J. Hays, who were in the same line of business.

A GREAT DAY FOR AMERICA

THE American people REDEDICATE themselves today to the principles of liberty and justice which, 147 years ago today, were embodied in the permanent law of our country as the AMERICAN BILL OF RIGHTS.

In order to define what the irrevocable rights of the people were to be, the first ten amendments to the Constitution FIXED THE FIELDS OF PUBLIC PRIVILEGE in which the government would be forever without authority to interfere.

Herein were the cherished rights of free speech, free worship and free assembly; the inviolability of the home against unreasonable search and seizure; the reservation of powers to the States and to the people not specifically delegated by the Constitution of the Federal Government; the right of trial by jury, and the prohibition against cruel and unusual punishment and the safeguards against confiscation of private property without just compensation.

NOW WE HAVE a century and a half of NATIONAL EXPERIENCE behind us, to enable us to gauge what a tremendous benefaction this BILL OF RIGHTS has been, and what immeasurable human satisfaction has resulted from it. Our institutions have sprung from it, and prospered under it.

How could we be a people of little faith in American democracy, with this historic proof of its infallibility to inform and enlighten and protect us?

A day of REDEDICATION to the principles of democracy will rekindle our love and appreciation for the country which has given us liberty and justice in such abundance, and strengthen our resolve to make democratic institutions the assured heritage of all Americans.

WE SHOULD, however, rededicate ourselves to American principles EVERY DAY.

We should ALWAYS REMEMBER what life was and is in those parts of the world today where there is no democracy.

Let us PRIZE our liberties and our free institutions.

Let us understand how they were conceived, how they have benefited us and how they can be and must be PERPETUATED.

Let us make this patriotic understanding, this respect for and faith in the American system, the THING FIRST TAUGHT

TO YOUTH, the one thing never forgotten in any age.

Only in patriotic education of youth can we be assured that liberty and justice will endure, and that the institutions and principles to which we have rededicated ourselves today will remain for other generations and be preserved by them.

By their splendid upsurge of patriotism in observance of NATIONAL REDEDICATION DAY, the American people have proved themselves worthy of their institutions.

They have reaffirmed their MILITANT AMERICANISM.

THIS, THEN, is a GREAT DAY for America, almost as great a day as that momentous occasion 147 years ago when the Bill of Rights was ratified.

For today we have proved ever present with us the same faith in democracy that first set up liberty and equality, justice and tolerance, as FUNDAMENTAL AMERICAN IDEALS, to endure as long as the Republic they support endures.

Nor can the Republic itself long endure for the good and glory of us all if those basic rights and liberties are once forgotten and destroyed.

THE FARM VOTE

The Editor Says:—The crop control referendum held in 19 States Saturday resulted in approval of continued federal quota restrictions by cotton growers, and rejection of these artificial devices by tobacco and rice growers.

New Deal farm program spokesmen, looking at the cotton vote and ignoring the tobacco and rice verdicts, interpret the result as an endorsement of the whole idea of government regulation.

They probably correctly interpret the situation as to cotton, for with this vote numerous cotton fields largely closed to American growers by New Deal policies which have turned world markets over to foreign growers. American cotton growers have not much else to look forward to but continued government subsidization.

Actually, the cotton vote proves nothing except the continuing DISTRESS of cotton growers, the extent and causes of which the New Deal farm program has NOT alleviated or eliminated.

American farmers are inherently an independent and self-dependent people. Reliance of SCARCITY as an implement for the attainment of prosperity.

It would be a mistake to overlook the clear evidence of the fact that American farmers are restless under government control and would welcome an opportunity to get back to a program of full and free production.

Tobacco and rice growers have made it plain that they PREFER IT THAT WAY.

Undoubtedly cotton growers would also prefer it that way, except for the handicaps the New Deal has forced upon them. And so would ALL farm producers in all parts of the country. Nothing is more clear to the farmers than that farm problems are NOT YET SOLVED.

They do not BELIEVE in idle acres or crop destruction. They are completely unsold on SCARCITY as a permanent cure for their ills.

HIGHWAY DEATHS should be drastically reduced by the establishment of 25-mile-an-hour speed limits in 29 Massachusetts towns.

Because of hazardous operation conditions, prolonged darkness and an abundance of too many persons to prefer haste to safety, the number of persons killed in the accident harvest month in this State.

The present safety campaign is a late, but fortunate recognition of the danger.

When the police department and patrol agency will give the same attention to needless tragedies are to be avoided.

It is a sad fact to realize that because of automobiles, 596 persons were killed in the State in the last year.

It would be well to know that the failure of any city to take measures to save more mothers, fathers and children to be taken from an otherwise happy home.

If you have a taste for murder, as most people seem to have, judging from the torrent of murder mysteries which pour over the literary dam, if you would like to travel back through the years with Mr. Stull and visit Melville's Sunday Hall on the Bowery and the family Haymarket, then, Mr. Stull is your man and "Stolen in Crime" is your book. It will rob you of sleep.

FAMILIAR WITH many of Mr. Stull's most noted murder cases, his account of the murder of Joseph B. Elwell, a famous bridge-whist expert of 20 years ago, is the most extraordinary case of unsolved crime. Elwell came to his death by a pistol wound in the center of his forehead as he sat in his own home in New York, early in the morning of June 11, 1920.

JOURNALIST EDWIN C. HILL
Finds Solution-Defying Murder Mystery.

On the last night of his spectacular life, Elwell attended a gay dinner party at the Ritz Carlton Hotel. Present were a number of persons whose names figured prominently in the news of that day. The party broke up at two o'clock in the morning.

Elwell was home at 2:30 he cause a woman called him and talked to him at that time. The telephone records show that, at 4:39 a. m. he called a number at Far Rockaway, and that at 6:09 he called a number in Garden City, Long Island. At 6:15 a. m. the milkman left a quart of milk in the vestibule, and at 7:30 the postman rang twice and left a batch of mail.

At 8:10 Elwell's housekeeper let herself in, as usual. She saw her employer seated in a chair in front of the fireplace in the living room to the right of the hall. On the floor were letters delivered an hour before by the postman. A glance told the housekeeper that Elwell was through with this world.

Bugs Baer Says:

THERE WILL BE a Hall of Pharmacy at the 1939 World's Fair dedicated to the little American druggstore with the big list of accessories. It will be a fitting tribute to the American drug and Yankee genius plaster. One has never been torn down. Or the other off.

WHAT WE WANT to know about the corner druggist and his clerks is their ratio to the World's Fair and New York. How are you going to get them back to the pharmacy after they've seen Broadway?

IN THE BRIGHT lexicon of medicine, we would say the druggist is second in importance to the doctor. The physician prescribes the mixture, the druggist blends it, and we take it.

WE CONSIDER the little corner druggstore as being more important than the 1939 World's Fair. It was there in 1776. And it was there in 1812. It was there in 1861. And again in 1917. But the most important dates were those who had with your girl there.

THE PHARMACY was there on the same old corner in 1920 when the land went drier than a cracker barrel. It was a friend in need.

THE DETECTIVES pounced on every possible clue. Heavy iron grating barred the windows on the first floor. The only unlocked windows in the house were in Elwell's own room on the third floor. Nobody could have entered or left by those lofty windows.

He had discarded his toupee and false teeth, evidently on the point of retiring. A search of the house turned up a wealth of material, which, though it failed to suggest a telling clue, offered much that might suggest a motive.

After 18 years the mystery is as deep as ever. Mr. Shakespeare and Daniel Webster to the contrary—MURDER DOES NOT ALWAYS WILL OUT.

On Beacon Hill

Dining at the 'Y'
Precedes Lecture

By BETTY ALDEN

DINING at the Y. W. C. A. was a new experience enjoyed by many mothers of our first families last evening. The occasion was a dinner party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Dennis, noted experts in the field of the "Y." session, and so that their guests would not put on their most staid and proper manners within the ordinarily feminine parlors of the "Y." session, the guests started the evening off with cocktail parties at home and did everything in their power to make the dinner a gay and festive affair.

Afterwards, everyone headed across the street to John Hancock Hall where Mr. Dennis showed his thrilling notes of an expedition into the Belgian Congo, commissioned by King Leopold III of Belgium. This was the last of a series of "Evenings of Adventure" sponsored by a prominent group of "Y" directors for the benefit of the organization.

Dinner companions of the explorer and his wife, who is the former Leila Roosevelt, cousin of the first Lady and frequent guest at the White House, were Norman Vaughan, who has been his bit to uphold Boston's fame as the home of many adventures (he was a member of the last Byrd expedition, and is a noted yachtsman and skier), and his wife, the former Rosamond Lockwood. The latter wore her dark curls piled high above a black mink gown and her wrap was swathed in floor-length silver foxes. Also at their table were the Paul Clarks, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Creighton, the Richard Manns, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clafin and the Belgian consul, George Toole, all of whom are snappy dinner table conversationalists.

Aristocratic Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird dined in the midst of all this festivity with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Francis Bird. The senior Mrs. Bird in black lace with diamonds sparkling on the bodice and pearls and a velvet band encircling her throat.

Attractive Bevy of Ushers

PRISCILLA THORNDIKE, daughter of one of the "Y" directors, corralled such an attractive bevy of ushers for the lecture that a regular stag line formed in the back of the hall to prevent the girls from giving undivided attention to their job. Between snatches of conversation with these Harvardians, however, they managed manfully to remember which seats were designated by blue, red or yellow tickets, and no one was ushered to the wrong place. Martha Bird's reddish gold hair was set off by a striking black velvet gown, the puff-sleeved bodice gayly embroidered with small Tyrolean flowers; Priscilla looked exceedingly pretty in peacock blue velvet with long sleeves, and Jane Adams wore a feathered pillbox hat with her unusual evening gown made like a jumper dress, in two shades of violet; Marian Leeson, Joan Sagardoff, Fuzzy Fabyan and Caroline Oveson also did not miss a usher.

Others in the throng helping the lecture were the Harold Wicks, Janet McNeil, Mary Tompkins, Ann Wicks, Frederick Wicks, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Carl, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Jenney, and Mrs. Crosby Choate, who made a charming picture in a scarlet taffeta gown with a fitted velvet jacket collared in ermine tails and carrying a puffy ermine muff.

Plan Ball

Charlotte Cushman
Fete Next Month

MRS. LOUIS MCCLELLAN MRS. GARDNER PROUTY, JR.
THESE ATTRACTIVE young matrons, Mrs. Louis McClellan of Cambridge and Mrs. Gardner Prouty, Jr. of Weston, were members of the Gardenia Hall committee attending the first meeting yesterday afternoon at the Charlotte Cushman Club, to decide on ways and means to make the ball an outstanding success. The affair will benefit the Cushman Club and is scheduled for January 24 at the Copple Plaza.

Gardenia Ball
In January

Another Gardenia Ball is scheduled to brighten the social calendar for January, according to plans devised at a committee meeting at the Charlotte Cushman Club yesterday afternoon. The affair will be a supper dance January 24, at the Copple Plaza, for the benefit of the club.

A bevy of the season's debs reported for the first meeting and too. In the group were Nancy Meyer, Alice Jagger, Mary West, Betty Chalkley, Harriet Bandy, Nancy Tenney, Constance MacRae, Catherine and Adelaide Will, Nina W. Harrison, Nancy D. H. Ethel Fehner, and a number of post debs and young marrieds.

In the latter group were Mrs. Louis McClellan, Mrs. Gardner Prouty, Jr., Mrs. Harold Sawyer, Mrs. Van Houten MacBride, Cornelia Menard and Mrs. Whiting Wamsler. Mrs. Malcolm Bradley Brown, president of the club, is chairman of the ball.

Settlement House
Party on Sunday

The children of the Blessed Sacrament Settlement House will be guests of honor at the feature Christmas party to be given by the Massachusetts Chapter of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae at the settlement Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Joseph J. Derry has arranged many novelties. Capably aiding her are Mrs. Sydney Dunn, Miriam Sullivan, Agnes Callaghan, Sue Sheridan, Julia Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Thomas Nolan, Mrs. Emily Mitchell, Mary Barry, Gertrude Hickey, Clementine McDonald and Gertrude Grady.

Jamaica Plain
Folk Sponsor Dance

WITH NOVELTIES of every type arranged and a swing band imported to play, the Iota Pi Eta sorority of Jamaica Plain and West Roxbury will conduct its first dance the night after Christmas in the colorful Waterfront Club, 1 Rowe's Wharf.

Helene Connolly of Jamaica Plain sorority president, is acting as chairman with the subscription committee, consisting of Eleanor White, Hilson Holman and Lorraine Edmunds. Miss Connolly will head the reception committee, assisted by Barbara Snyder and Joan Brown and Constance Jones. While an attractive group of the young set—Joyce Bayle, Constance Murphy and Gussie DeBorja—will preside at the bar, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Conolly head the patrons list, which includes Dr. and Mrs. George Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. H. and Mr. and Mrs. Winifred W. and John Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Earl F. Gibson. Those lending their support to the charity party are Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Edmunds, Mr. and Mrs. Lorraine Jones, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Crowley, Mr. and Mrs. David Snyder, Mrs. Alice Berner and Mr. and Mrs. William F. Jones.

Lorraine Edmunds is vice-chairman of the Iota Pi Eta sorority charity dance at the Waterfront Club the night after Christmas.

Fete Moffat
Girls Tonight

Practically all the arts are represented in the talents of the Moffat family whose party this evening in honor of Edith and Faith Moffat should provide a wealth of new ideas in decoration and entertainment.

Edith's father, Donald Moffat, is a well known author whose genius will probably be put to good use in composing appropriate verses for the place cards. Faith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Moffat, are amateur gardening enthusiasts and artists, respectively whose talents should certainly produce something unusual to make the party an outstanding one. The beautiful Brookline home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Moffat will be the scene of the evening's festivities.

Edith and Faith are two of the prettiest girls among this season's debs, and both have been invited to the ball at the White House, which Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt is giving December 27 for her niece, Eleanor Roosevelt.

HONORS POET-ALUMNUS

Harvard will honor its poet alumnus today when a special exhibit of the works of Robert Frost is placed on display in the Widener Library marking the 25th anniversary of his first book, "A Boy's Will," published in 1908.

Cruise Garb
At Style Show

A preview of cruise and tropic resort clothes provided pleasant entertainment during luncheon at the Terrace Room of the Statler yesterday following the Morning Musicals.

Setting an appealing example for the fashions was Mrs. William C. Cox of Cohasset, whose luncheon outfit was fashioned of unusually becoming tanish tweeds with a high crowned fez of pheasant feathers. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Hugh Hancock. Mrs. William B. Long shared a table with Mrs. Alexander Whelan while Mrs. Harold McNeil and her sister, Mrs. Walter Carl, made a party with a group of musical committee members.

"The DOCTOR" by MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Doctor's Wife Finds Richer Husband

CHAPTER 45

Doctor Arden, he Beverly's father, watching her from below with a miserable face. Her chin, body, her arms, all of her body, every atom of him seemed for her to be a part of her, and keep her. But not there, not in that house, through the long winter days, not in his life as it was and would be.

When she stopped at the top of the stairs and looked down, he was smiling up at her.

"My room is straight ahead," he said, "and I'll try to run down a clean towel somewhere."

She stood inside his door, looking about her. There was the wide bed, with the Star of Bethlehem quilt spread awkwardly over it. On the old maple chest of drawers were his small necessities, the few things a man requires.

Beside the bed was a table with an oil lamp and a book, and on the floor was a pair of muddy boots. She put her hand to her throat. So this was his life now, this cold, bleak room stripped to the bare requirements of living!

She went over and put her hand on a low stool, and, gently, and softly, her eyes filling with tears, "There was a towel in the mirror and towel to herself."

"Why alone? You're young and very lovely, Beverly. It isn't too late to make a life for yourself."

"I don't want it without you, Chris."

"You don't know what you are talking about. You don't belong here. I do, or I shall in time. And one thing's certain, Beverly, I can't support you, and the last vestige of pride I've got would be lost if I let you support me. When things get better, I'll tell you."

"So close about. Then I suppose I can come back, on your terms. Is that it?"

"No, Chris, I've done something I never thought I could do, and you're still too much for me. If I go now, I go for good."

"My darling," he said gently, "I am not altogether the egotistic fool you think I am. I know this life. I saw an aunt of mine going through it, and I know. And I saw some one else try it and fail. I can't."

"WHO IS NOEL?"

He had drawn a small table to the fire and put a clean cloth on it. The table was there, the cups and saucers, a loaf of fresh bread, and a pat of butter.

"Pretty quick work if I do say so. I'm a doctor, Beverly. But a pretty quick work, when you think of it. I used to be pretty good with a knife."

"You'd better look up a train for me, Chris."

"Tea first. And do you mind cutting the bread? I'm awkward with a knife. Funny, when you think of it. I used to be pretty good with a knife."

"Noel? Noel?"

He was shocked into a sort of a moment. He poured out a cup of tea and placed it in front of her.

"Idiot, idiot, Beverly. I'm sure. Noel's a Missus Mastin's child, and a fine boy he is. The Mastin Mastins adopted him long ago. He's like a son now, and I love him to God he will."

"Don't be sorry. Why shouldn't I know? I have often wondered about him. Isn't that true?"

"But for a moment the ghost of Jerry was between them. Chris was talking quickly, driving away Jerry, talking of a man, a boy, and a dog through the summer days; trudging the fields, fishing, and digging among Letitia's flowers. Beverly felt faintly jealous.

"I suppose," she said, "that no mere woman could break into that triumvirate."

"We got along. The going was pretty good, but we missed."

"And the woman? Has she got to go along by herself, Chris? That's rather worse than poor, you know."

DR. ARDEN EXPLAINS refusal to let Beverly stay with him. "It is love," he declares. "Some day you'll see it yourself. I've loved you always. I've never changed."

"Always my own girl, whatever happens."

It was that picture that he carried back with her, that he took to her empty house and her empty life. She could have helped him, but he had not wanted her. His place was too great. She could not fight it.

She was not very well after that. Sometimes she had a pain in her nagging pain in her back, and she was not very well after that. Sometimes she had a pain in her nagging pain in her back, and she was not very well after that.

Newspaper linage gains are good news for Boston Business. They reflect better business, or healthy optimism, or both. And, in November, all Boston daily papers, except one, showed Total Retail linage gains, over November, 1937.

The Record-American proudly (for reasons herewith to be noted) renders its monthly Retail Linage Gains Report, for the enlightenment of Boston merchants who follow trends and plan accordingly:

REAL HOLIDAY SEASON TREATS FOR FILM FANS

James Cagney and Ann Sheridan in M-G-M's "A Christmas Carol." Charles Dickens' famous story which appears on Loew's State and Orpheum programs.

Dick Foran and Helen Mack add love interest to "Secrets of a Nurse," new film at the Keith Memorial.

'Christmas Carol' Loew's Feature

If the spirit of Christmas still eludes you, see Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "A Christmas Carol," which, with "The Great Waltz," MGM's musical romance, highlights the life, loves and misadventures of Johann Strauss. Vienna waltz king makes of the program on Loew's State and Orpheum screens this week.

"A Christmas Carol" brings to vivid life all the characters of Charles Dickens' masterpiece. Reginald Owen, Lionel Barrymore, Man Ray, and others in the cast. Reginald Owen plays Ebenezer Scrooge himself. Barrymore was too ill to go before the camera and recommended Owen, who now has the chance to deliver a Dickens' characterization comparable to those of Ronald Colman's Sidney Carton in "A Tale of Two Cities" and W. C. Fields' Micawber in "David Copperfield."

Austen Lake:

The Man Who Always Starts 'Em Arguing

THE MAN-WHO-ALWAYS-LEAVES-'EM-ARGUING held forth in tailored elegance, an unlit cigar screwed into his features and talking with his usual ten-pound scowl. He had come to Boston briefly on the duplex errand of refereeing some harmless hoopla at the Boston Arena and of plugging his particular brand of bottled stimulant—the Jack Dempsey kind, which comes in dimpled flasks and bears his seal and crest.

Austen Lake

Somebody asked Dempsey whether he thought he could have flattened Joe Louis, if each had met the other in his prime. Dempsey modestly ducked the question with a tactful reply and it started an argument. It's an old Dempsey trick. He always starts 'em arguing.

Remember?

It started in Toledo, O., 19 years ago come July . . . an unpainted lumber arena under a pitiless sun . . . Dempsey biffing Willard ailly with his first punch . . . The huge man staggering, slumping, coming up and being dropped again . . . They still argue how many times Willard collapsed in those first three rounds . . . Dempsey jubilantly leaving the ring and discovering that the time-keeper had fouled the bell-clapper in the lacing of the canvas so that he had failed to end the round before curfew was tolled over the Giant . . . Dempsey climbing back and punishing Willard so savagely that the big man refused to come out for the fourth round . . . Arguments for months afterward over whether the fight should be recorded as a third round K. O.

Did He Foul Firpo?

THAT SEPTEMBER NIGHT in 1923 when Dempsey fought the Argentine, the state named Angel Firpo . . . Dempsey almost being dropped has a rushed in at the opening bell . . . He shakes off his stupor and hits Firpo again and again . . . He's up . . . He's down . . . How many times? . . . Dempsey standing over the South American and hitting as he rose from the canvas . . . Foul?

Dempsey being ruled out thought he was and falling up-side-down on the post staff . . . Hope here the post staff brought to push him back . . . Was he assisted or did he come up under his own power? The question is still being asked as Dempsey pounds Firpo to a bloody pulp . . . Could he have been dropped?

The July 1924 fight with the primly conditioned Jack Sharkey . . . Dempsey driving three low punches . . . Sharkey with lips puckered in disgust . . . Dempsey stepping in and hitting him for the final knockout . . . Was there a foul in the rough? . . . Endless ringside squabbling between New York and Boston factions . . . Two newsmen in a fact-finding effort . . . Dempsey the other to his embittered visage . . . Sharkey, in fact, lying on a rubbing table while a doctor attended his mouth and claiming weakly that Dempsey "fouled the post staff" . . . Thousands who saw it agreed . . . Other than cards didn't.

The Long Count in Chi

SOLDIERS FIELD, CHICAGO, SEPT. 22, 1927 . . . Dempsey in his second coming against Gene Tunney . . . The seventh round and Dempsey crowding his man into an angle of the ropes and sending him reeling under a shower of blows . . . Tunney down, looking like a village idiot, while Dempsey looks above him for the quick, finishing kill . . .

Referee Dave Barry waving Jack to a neutral corner and Dempsey glaring a surly refusal . . . Barry starting the count over Tunney at 1, instead of picking it up at 5 from the chant of the knockdown judge . . .

Tunney rising wobbly at the count of 9, or, as some still insist, at 14; backpedaling and dodging until his brain clears and then going on to win a technical decision in the tenth from his antiquated and fast-tiring rival . . . The crowd milling toward the exits, screaming pros and cons . . . Dempsey's faction claiming victory . . . Tunney's loyalists arguing that Gene could have risen without an extended time allowance . . . arguments which still find a present-day echo . . .

Ring's No. 1 Controversialist

DEMPSEY REFEREEING THE MAX BAER-TOM HEENEY fight at Madison Square in 1931 . . . Third round with Heeney on the heel of his trunk . . . Dempsey rushing Baer to his corner and picking up the count from Timekeeper Arthur Donovan . . . or so he thought . . . Heeney listening to the numerals as he rests comfortably on one knee and rising to resume at Dempsey's toll of 9 . . .

Danavan screaming from under the ring apron that Heeney had been counted out, cupping his hands to yell above the bedlam . . . Dempsey halting the fight and leaning over to listen as Danavan explains that his pants caught on the seat of his chair as he tried to rise to start the count and that the first downward stroke of his wallet was actually 2 instead of the 1 which Dempsey assumed . . . Dempsey, bewildered, giving the decision to Baer amid a storm of protests and arguments everywhere . . . Police taking charge . . .

Arguments over whether Jack had pulled his punches against Tom Gibbons under the guise of the wild west at Shelby, Montana, in 1922 . . . Arguments over whether he had taken an intentional knockout from Foreman Jim Flynn in 1917 . . . His 47 knockouts in 68 fights, not including 10 no-decision bouts, as against Joe Louis's record of 34 knockouts in 41 fights . . . Whether the calibre of the pugilists in Dempsey's heyday were of more lethal standard than those now being belted over by Louis . . .

Yes! Even now, he always starts them arguing

Sox Wait Word On Auker Trade

"I'm sitting pretty," croons Ben Chapman. But not with Sox. Ben will crown his tune in Cleveland next year.

NEW YORK, Dec. 15. With Donny Galehouse, big righthander from Cleveland added to their pitching staff, the Red Sox today counted final decision as to whether they'd also get Elden Auker from Detroit.

The completion of a tentative trade between the Sox and the A's resulted in the acquisition of Galehouse and Tim Lincecum, a right-handed pitcher, for the Sox. The deal also included the Sox sending outfielder, acquired last night, to Detroit.

The Sox had announced they were getting a new pitcher, after the Sox had traded Auker to the Sox. The Sox had announced they were getting a new pitcher, after the Sox had traded Auker to the Sox.

SOX WANTED GRIMES

The deal, as completed, is on Cleveland has traded him since the start of the dackering several days ago.

The Sox at first were looking for Galehouse and a righthander, but they wanted a left-handed pitcher, and they wanted a left-handed pitcher.

Determined to get the Indians pitcher as a new pitcher, the Sox decided to let Starnes leave, a move they say about the infirmary to the Sox.

Galehouse, a pitching performer at Cleveland since 1928, has a record of 14-10, with 100 strikeouts and a 2.10 ERA.

Helen Wills Moody Wins 'Comeback' Poll

Heroine of the outstanding sports comeback of 1933 is Helen Wills Moody.

The talented San Francisco tennis player earned the No. 1 prize in a close race with Jimmy Fox, clouting first baseman of the Boston Red Sox.

Twenty-four of the 70 sports editors participating in the eighth annual Associated Press poll cast the first place ballots for Mrs. Moody and her achievement in coming back after a three-year lapse.

Those Poor Writers

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (AP)—The Baseball Writers of America today appointed their president, Paul Shannnon of the Boston Post, to consult with Administrator Elmer F. Andrews regarding the application of the wage-hour law to correspondents travelling with the baseball clubs during the spring training season.

Harridge, A. L. Prexy, Man of Year

CHICAGO, Dec. 15 (AP)—A good steady job, there's the philosophy of the American League. After eight years in the White House, the president of the American League, A. L. Harridge, has been elected Man of the Year by the American League writers.

HOBBY AND BUSINESS

Harridge was born in Boston Nov. 1, 1891. He is a former professional baseball player, having played for the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees.

He is a keen motorist and something of a political hobbyist. He spends his summer months at his home in Florida, within sound of the training camps.

Diffident as to personal publicity, Harridge is anything but a shy head president. He has been elected to the position of president of the American League for the third time.

A progressive he always is willing to meet modern men, such as night baseball, although he was many circling the game with his cricketers and swing hands.

JUST WARMING UP

It's nice work, this president of the American League, but for the next 10 years and more and FRANKIE BRIMSEK, Bruins make goalie, had three straight shutouts before meeting Canadiens Tuesday. He gets another shot at club in Montreal tonight.

Strips Dark Hazard

So any young fellow with ambitions to be president of something or other could best sleep peacefully with the Republican or Democratic a few backs to railroad, where there is a chance for advancement.

W. L. Thompson, who is a member of the Senate, has been elected to the position of president of the American League. He is a former professional baseball player and has been elected to the position of president of the American League for the third time.

McCoy Shoots For K. O. Against Knox

Has Score To Settle With Buddy

Al McCoy, New England heavyweight champion, will strive to score with a knockout when he collides with Buddy Knox of Chicago in one of the ten-round bouts that will feature the Goodwin A. C.'s show for the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American Sunday Advertiser.

"I want to even the score for the defeat Knox handed me in Chicago last summer," writes McCoy from New York where he is training. "I don't like to offer alibis, but I don't believe I was in the proper physical condition for my last meeting with Knox. I had not been active enough in the ring, and my timing was off. This time I'll call my shots, and won't miss. I feel I shall win by a knockout."

KNOX HAS YOUTH

Knox, an Irish-American heavyweight, insists that if there is a key landed next Thursday night he will be the one to put the big sock over. Knox has youth, a punch and is a fair boxer.

The other ten-round feature will find Bob Pastor of New York battling Tony Shucco of the North End. Pastor weathered ten blistering rounds with Joe Louis, and later upset Al McCoy at the Garden.

Pastor is an exceptionally good boxer, and can punch, as he proved by dropping McCoy twice.

It will be Shucco's first bout since he returned from Europe. Tony is always in good condition, and expects to score a victory.

Other bouts on the Goodwin card, which may draw the biggest fight crowd in recent years in the Garden, will be Henry Chmielewski, Poland, vs. Young Jack Dempsey, New Bedford; Oscar Suggs, Fall River, vs. Fred Cahal, Cambridge, winner of his last start by a knockout; Jerry Zullo, Chelsea, former amateur star, who has piled up a string of K. O. wins, vs. Sam Tenorio, Quincy; and Martin Raley, Fall River, vs. George Salamond, East Boston.

Set to Start

Austie Harding, Harvard ace, has recovered from his shoulder injury and will start Saturday against Southern California.

Only 2 Americans On Trojan Ice Team

The Southern California Trojans, slated to face the Harvard stickmen at the Arena on next Saturday evening, come here boasting a squad that consists of but two American youngsters.

The remaining Trojan roster is made up of Canadian boys with the exception of one lad from Peru, South America.

The two American boys, Arnold Prosser from Fountain City, Wisconsin, and William Harmon of Glendale, California, are overshadowed by their Canadian team mates.

FAST FIRST LINE

Harmon as a matter of fact sees but very little action, for he understudies the veteran Jerry Beranek in the Trojan nets.

Prosser, who weighs but 145 pounds, is a forward. He spent most of last season on the injured list.

The report from the coast is that this first line from Troy is the best that section has ever seen. The wings, Bob Novicki and Earl Robson are holdovers from last season. Novicki was high scorer a year ago with 18 goals and five assists to his credit. Robson ranked second with 12 goals and eight assists. The Trojans played only 16 games last winter.

CRIMSON DEFENSE SLOW

Graced between the top scoring duo is a sophomore, Wilbert Lenox. Lenox hails from Calgary, Alberta, and has proven himself a fit companion in this veteran line. The young Calgary boy comes fresh from prep school labeled as the most likely looking prospect in the West.

Coach Clark Hodder was not too pleased with the work his charges turned in against the Junior Olympics at the Arena, Tuesday night.

The defense at times was slow at covering in front of the Harvard cage. A weakness that will prove fatal on Saturday evening if it is not corrected this week.

Word comes from Cambridge that Austie Harding, who injured his right shoulder in the Olympic Junior contest, will be on hand for the Trojan game.

'Admiral,' 'Biscuit' May Meet in Florida

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 15 (AP)—George Conway, trainer of War Admiral, expressed belief Owner Samuel D. Riddle was "interested" in a return match between the Admiral and Seabiscuit. The Biscuit defeated War Admiral in a match race last fall.

Conway said neither he nor Riddle had heard directly from officials of Hialeah track at Miami, Fla., where reports said, a $40,000 race involving Seabiscuit, War Admiral, Herbert Woolf's Lawrin, Kentucky Derby winner, and Maxwell Howard's Stagehand, was being considered.

RAMBLERS ON TOP

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 15 (AP)—The Philadelphia Ramblers beat the Pittsburgh Hornets 1 to 0 in one of the fastest games of International-American League hockey seen here this season.

Red Sox Wait Word on Auker Trade

help but bolster the Sox mediocre mound staff.

Denny, a speed baller, was used mostly as a relief worker in Cleveland. He is being counted on as a starting finger by the Sox but it may be discovered that he's more valuable as a relief artist.

The Sox haven't a regret over Chapman's passing. Blazin Ben played some great ball at the Fens last season and finished up with a batting average of .340 but he's an erratic, temperamental performer and gave the management many headaches.

WILLIAMS MOVES IN

Whether or not his baseball ability will be missed depends on young Ted Williams, who is slated to be the Sox regular rightfielder next year.

This kid, purchased from San Diego in 1937 and farmed out to Minneapolis last season, lost no time in establishing himself as one of the greatest sluggers in American Association history, and competent scouts who saw him in action with the Millers predict he'll be the prize major league rookie of 1939.

If he isn't yet ready, though, the Sox will have a big hole to fill in the sun garden, but that's the chance they had to take.

For, as everybody realizes they had to strengthen their pitching to remain in contention in next year's race.

NEED AUKER

Galchouse helps but Auker, too, must be added to the corps to make it formidable. A difference of opinion among the Tiger master minds is holding up this deal.

The Bengals have got around to agreeing to give the Sox an infielder in addition to the underhanded Eldon for Pinky Higgins but they can't agree on what infielder to throw in.

Business Manager Jack Zellars offered Mark Christian, a third sacker, that met with Eddie Collins approval, but Manager Del Baker wouldn't give his consent.

The Tiger pilot suggested another infielder, also agreeable to Collins, but Zellars then balked.

So it went until the interested parties agreed to call the whole thing off until this morning.

CASEY, PIE BUSY

Casey Stengel and "Pie" Traynor haven't been a yard apart at any time for the past two days, leading one to suspect that eventually the Bees and Pirates will engage in some bantering.

And Larry MacPhail is telling intimates he has an appointment today which may result in further dealing with the Swarms. But Bob Quinn is betting Stengel gets to place with Traynor and he denies having any date with MacPhail.

"We may do something later on but I'll be greatly surprised if we can make any more trades over here," asserted the Bees' press.

The big news of the second day of the pow-wows was the official acceptance of night ball by the American League, with the A's and Indians being given permission to stage seven home games under the arc next season.

All clubs except the Tigers have signified their willingness to play a night game in Philadelphia and Cleveland.

Yanks Open with Nats

NEW YORK, Dec. 15 (AP)—The New York Yankees, who fared all right on all other kinds, will get a look at presidential pitching next spring.

The world champions drew the assignment to open the American League season at Washington next April 17.

Pittsburgh will play at Cincinnati the same day to inaugurate the National League campaign, with all other clubs in both leagues swinging into action on the 18th.

Favorites Score At Fair Grounds

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 15 (AP)—Cold weather and a soft track held down attendance at the Fair Grounds as heavily played favorites, for the most part, finished as expected.

A. Barrera's Phalanx captured the featured sixth race at six furlongs by inches from Johnny. Adusky Prince was third. Phalanx paid $5 for $2.

Stripp Praises Durocher

ORLANDO, Fla., Dec. 15 (AP)—Joseph Valentine Stripp was enthusiastic about a number of things, and among them was being reunited with Leo "Tip" Durocher who he predicted would make good as manager of the unpredictable Brooklyn Dodgers.

Stripp, 36-year-old veteran third baseman, said he was unable to understand the trade that brought him to Brooklyn again to end a round trip that sent him to St. Louis and Boston and back in a year, but said "it was all right with me." The Bees traded him to the Dodgers for pitcher Fred Frankhouse.

Joe was bubbling over with praise for Durocher, who is the latest in a parade of Brooklyn managers since jovial Wilbert Robinson ended his long tenure Durocher and Stripp played together at Cincinnati in 1930 and 1931.

"Leo is gonna make good with Brooklyn," Stripp enthused. "He's going about things the right way by installing a veteran ball club. That's one city where a young fellow doesn't stand much chance. Brooklyn ball players have got to be able to produce or the fans don't want 'em."

Golden Girl of Hollywood

Sonja Captivates Boston Audience

By WALTER KILEY

Norway's "Golden Girl," glamorous Sonja Henie, skates back into the affections of Boston's populace in her newest and most breath taking vehicle, the "Hollywood Ice Revue."

Close to 13,000 men, women and children, roared and shrieked their approbation for Sonja's choicest offerings, calling her back to the white surface for one encore after another as opening night, first of five successive performances, passed into Boston Garden history.

The gallery just couldn't get enough of her talented artistry and skating wizardry and at the final curtain, following the brilliantly staged and colorful climatic "Alice in Wonderland" number, broke out in a bedlam of whistles and cheers until finally she quit returning from sheer exhaustion and left her audience with departing kisses.

The Hollywood Ice Revue is expertly staged, gorgeously costumed, timed to precision, and boasts a thoroughly trained cast of 106, almost half of whom are lovely misses whose agility on the flashing blades matches their wholesome and refreshing beauty.

It's a sustaining production from the first of the 20 widely different scenes to the finale, with Miss Henie, performing all of 60 of the 120 minutes, dominating and coloring and thrilling a rapt gallery. Garden females took Sonja to their hearts. They went into rhapsodies over the truly European and Hollywood costumes. Their generous plaudits brought a sparkle of pleasure and excitement to the "Golden Girl's" dimpled cheeks and aroused in her a desire to outdo herself for this so appreciative gathering.

SWAN DANCE OUT

Boston's own Karl Rhode and his ice carnival orchestra lent the perfect musical background to the many numbers, the repertoire calling for a majority of symphonic arrangements, all of which Rhode and his tune-makers handled so beautifully that the dances took on added lustre.

Miss Henie departed from custom in several ways. She abandoned her "Dance of the Dying Swan" for the first time in the decade she's been coming to skate in Boston, and introduced instead such modern effects as the "Lambeth Walk," with a novel arrangement which brought down the house.

Her opening was purposely delayed and the delaying only served to make the audience the more anxious for her debut number.

An ovation greeted her as she swept through a medley of motion picture dances excerpts. She later soloed in "Voices of Spring" and in the always grand "Liebestraum," to the music of Liszt.

PAIRS WITH REBURN

She paired for the first time in Boston performances in a "Tango" with Stewart Reburn, Canada's figure skating champion, and then closed as she spun and whirled through the capricious, fantastic, fanciful and appealing "Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking Glass," which was so admirably propped by a cast of 65 performers, so well costumed, that it outshone the "Fairy Tale" story itself.

Miss Henie and Mr. Reburn were a delight. He was the perfect foil. Experts both, they threw the crowd into a frenzy and were forced to no fewer than seven encores and they only were able to call it enough in order that the show might continue.

The Alice in Wonderland scenes were marvellous in effective settings, and proved something every child would delight in as well as the older, winding up with the coronation of Queen Alice, the fabled ending to the beautiful fairy story.

There were many supporting stars whose performances were superb. They included Mabel Jackson and Bert Clark, Irving Gregg and many others.

North Grid Squad Completed at 22

CHICAGO, Dec. 15 (INS)—A squad of 22 players from the East and Midwest was completed today for the North's team of all-stars who will play the South in a charity football game at Montgomery, Ala., January 2.

Acceptance of the players was announced by Coaches Lynn Wadsworth of Northwestern University and Carl Snavely of Cornell.

Stu Martin Married

SEDLEY, Va., Dec. 15 (AP)—Stuart Martin, St. Louis Cardinals' second baseman, and Miss Louise Cornwell of Sedley were married here today.

Martin met Miss Cornwell two years ago in a Suffolk, Va., hospital. She was his nurse during his convalescence after an operation for appendicitis.

Best Of Luck

Paul Runyan (left), Professional Golfers' Association champion, and Ralph Guldahl, National Open champion, seem to be doing some tall wondering if this horseshoe will help their luck in the $10,000 Miami Open Golf

Snead, Guldahl In Miami Open

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 15 (AP)—Opening of the $10,000 Miami open golf tournament marked the beginning of Florida's winter sports program here today.

Some 200 professionals and amateur golfers wound up preliminary rounds and exhibitions to start in the last big money contest of the year.

"Slammin' Sam" Snead, who smacked out a warmup 65 as notice to the field that he expected to repeat the victory he earned last year, needed only third place or better to become the first $20,000 player in professional golf association history.

He has stuffed $19,039 in his jeans by winning eight of the 34 tournaments already played. Johnny Revolta and Ralph Guldahl, national open champion, were conceded the best chances of beating Snead to the $2500 top money in the four-day tournament, but even if he finished as a runner-up the White Sulphur Springs pro still would be greatest money winner in PGA history.

N. H. Announces Carnival Dates

CONCORD, N. H., Dec. 15 (AP)—Dates for six winter carnivals were announced today by the State Planning and Development Commission, which said other communities also were planning events.

The dates include Conway, Jan. 21-22; Hanover, Feb. 16-17; Jaffrey, Feb. 17-20; Meredith, Feb. 4-5; Newport, Jan. 16-16; Whitefield, Feb. 22.

Severe Mat Test For 'The Shadow'

Yvon Robert, former world's heavyweight wrestling champion, is quite happy over the fact he will get a crack at "The Shadow," mystery man of the mat, in a finish bout at a Paul Bowser show at the Garden on next Thursday night.

"The Shadow" has been toppling over sturdy opposition, and in Robert he will be opposed by a heavyweight who will give him his most severe test.

"If I win from 'The Shadow,'" said Robert, "I shall be right back with the top-notchers. I can then insist upon a title match with Steve Casey."

Eddie Quinn, Robert's former manager, is now directing the affairs of "The Shadow," and he says he has an attack planned that will cause the downfall of the Frenchman.

GAME POSTPONED

The Harvard freshman hockey game with Belmont Hill School, scheduled for the Boston Arena this afternoon, has been postponed until sometime in January, H. A. A. officials announced last night.

THE BILL OF RIGHTS

(The Ten Original Amendments to The Constitution of the United States) Ratified, December 15, 1791.

I
Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof, or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press, or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

II
A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.

III
No soldier shall, in time of peace, be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner; nor in war time, but in a manner to be prescribed by law.

IV
The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated, and no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched and the persons or things to be seized.

V
No person shall be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury, except in cases arising in the land or naval forces or in the militia, when in actual service, in time of war or public danger; nor shall any person be subject for the same offense to be twice put in jeopardy of life or limb; nor shall he be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law; nor shall private property be taken for public use without just compensation.

VI
In all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the state and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense.

VII
In suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed twenty dollars, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by a jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any court of the United States than according to the rules of the common law.

VIII
Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel and unusual punishments inflicted.

IX
The enumeration in the Constitution of certain rights shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people.

X
The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution nor prohibited by it to the states are preserved to the states respectively or to the people.
